Key of A

There's a song in my soul for the sun goin' down
When it dies at the end of the day
With a sadness descending as soft as the sound
Of the light that was slipping away

chorus 1:

The heavens above me seemed empty and gray
As dreams that won't ever come true
And the star-spangled glory of love filled the skies
And my heart with the wonder of you

Pretty berries I carried to you
Pretty flowers to hold in your hand
Pretty reasons for dreams comin' true
And for doin' the best that you can

chorus 2:

I swear to be thankful the rest of my days
And worthy of whatever I do
For the chance I was given to live and believe
In the love and the wonder of you
