

MUS

The Shanty Book

Part I

Sailor Shanties

(Curwen Edition 2951)

Collected and Edited, with Pianoforte Accompaniment, by RICHARD RUNCIMAN TERRY, with a Foreword by SIR WALTER RUNCIMAN, Bart.

London: J. Curwen & Sons Ltd., 24 Berners Street, W.1
U.S.A.: Curwen Inc., Germantown, Philadelphia

Copyright, 1921, by J. Curwen & Sons Ltd.

A Vocal Edition containing melody only is published (6321), 1s. 6d.

Made in England

OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY

SIR RICHARD TERRY'S SAILOR SHANTIES

THE SHANTY BOOKS

Sir Richard Terry has made the subject of Sailor Shanties his own, as his lectures throughout the country have shown. His collections each contain about thirty shanties arranged for solo singing with optional unison chorus. They group together a wide variety of shanty culled from different parts of the coast, and dealing with the various aspects of the sailor's craft. Each work contains an interesting introduction in which the history and use of Shanties is explained; how they were sung, and the words used. A detailed note on each shanty is given, describing its character and use. All unusual words are explained.

PART I (2951) contains 14 Windlass and Capstan Shanties, 12 Halliard Shanties, 3 Fore-Sheet or Sweating-up Shanties, and 1 Bunt-Shanty. PART II (2952) contains 16 Windlass and Capstan Shanties, 18 Halliard Shanties, and 1 Fore-Sheet Shanty.

Particulars of contents, etc., are given in separate advertisement. Prices: Piano edition, 6s. net cash each. Vocal editions, 1s. 6d. each. Words only, 6d. each.

VARIOUS ARRANGEMENTS

CURWEN SONGS

- | | | |
|-------------------------------|--|-------------------------------|
| 2251 Billy Boy | 2253 Clear the track, let the Bullgine run | 2255 We're all bound to go |
| 2252 Johnny come down to Hilo | 2254 Shenandoah | 2401 Bound for the Rio Grande |
- Price 2/- each*

CHORAL SOCIETIES

For Solo and Mixed Voice Chorus, arranged by MAURICE JACOBSON

61198 FIRST SELECTION

CONTENTS

Billy Boy	Good-bye, fare-ye-well
We're all bound to go	Tom's gone to Hilo
Boney was a warrior	The Banks of Sacramento
Hilo, John Brown	Shenandoah
The Drummer and the Cook	Whisky Johnny
Haul away, Joe	A-Roving

61199 SECOND SELECTION

CONTENTS

We'll haul the bowline	Shallow Brown
Johnny come down to Hilo	Cheer'ly men
Santy Anna	Clear the track
Bound for the Rio Grande	Blow the man down
What shall we do with the drunken sailor?	The Wild Goose Shanty
	Can't you dance the polka?

Price 1/- each, either notation

FOR MEN'S VOICE CHOIRS

Solo and Chorus

50571 FIRST SELECTION

CONTENTS

Good morning, ladies all	The Dead Horse
The Wild Goose Shanty	Blow, my bully boys
Reuben Ranzo	Hilo Somebody
Sally Brown	Let the Bullgine run
We'll haul the bowline

50572 SECOND SELECTION

CONTENTS

Blow the man down	Bound for the Rio Grande
Boney was a warrior	Whisky Johnny
Good-bye, fare-ye-well	Santy Anna
Johnny come down to Hilo	Billy Boy
Johnny Boker

Price 1/- each. Sol-fa, 6d. each

UNISON SONGS FOR SCHOOLS

- | | | |
|---------------------------|--------------------------------|--------------------------------|
| 79101 Billy Boy | 79102 Bound for the Rio Grande | 79104 Johnny come down to Hilo |
| 79116 Blow the man down | 79117 Cheer'ly men | 79109 Shenandoah |
| 79162 Boney was a warrior | 79105 Clear the track | 79114 What shall we do? |
| | 79316 Fire down below | |

Price 3d. each

UNISON SONGS. Arranged with Descants by MAURICE JACOBSON

71763 SET I

CONTENTS

Billy Boy	Blow the man down
Clear the track	Johnny come down to Hilo
Tom's gone to Hilo

71764 SET II

CONTENTS

Shenandoah	What shall we do with the drunken sailor?
Cheer'ly men	Bound for the Rio Grande
Haul away, Joe

Price 6d. each set. Sol-fa, 4d.

FOR SCHOOL ORCHESTRA. Arranged by MAURICE JACOBSON

90108 SEA SHANTIES (First position only)

CONTENTS

Bound for the Rio Grande	Billy Boy	Johnny come down to Hilo
What shall we do with the drunken sailor?	Shenandoah

Price: Piano-Conductor, 1/- . String Parts, 6d. each

2951

FOREWORD

By SIR WALTER RUNCIMAN

IT is sometimes difficult for old sailors like myself to realize that these fine shanty tunes—so fascinating to the musician, and which no sailor can hear without emotion—died out with the sailing vessel, and now belong to a chapter of maritime history that is definitely closed. They will never more be heard on the face of the waters, but it is well that they should be preserved with reverent care, as befits a legacy from the generation of seamen that came to an end with the stately vessels they manned with such skill and resource.

In speech, the old-time 'shellback' was notoriously reticent—almost inarticulate; but in song he found self-expression, and all the romance and poetry of the sea are breathed into his shanties, where simple childlike sentimentality alternates with the Rabelaisian humour of the grown man. Whatever landsmen may think about shanty words—with their cheerful inconsequence, or light-hearted coarseness—there can be no two opinions about the tunes, which, as folk-music, are a national asset.

I know, of course, that several shanty collections are in the market, but as a sailor I am bound to say that only one—Capt. W. B. Whall's 'Sea Songs, Ships, and Shanties'—can be regarded as authoritative. Only a portion of Capt. Whall's delightful book is devoted to shanties, of which he prints the melodies only (without accompaniment); and of these he does not profess to give more than those he himself learnt at sea. I am glad, therefore, to welcome Messrs. Curwen's project of a wide and representative collection. Dr. Terry's qualifications as editor are exceptional, since he was reared in an environment of nineteenth-century seamen, and is the only landsman I have met who is able to render shanties as the old seamen did. I am not musician enough to criticize his pianoforte accompaniments, but I can vouch for the authenticity of the melodies as he presents them, untampered with in any way.

WALTER RUNCIMAN.

*Shoreston Hall,
Chathill, 1921.*

CONTENTS

	PAGE		PAGE
FOREWORD by Sir Walter Runciman ..	iii	HALLIARD SHANTIES:
INTRODUCTION	v	15 Blow, my bully boys	32
NOTES ON THE SHANTIES	xiii	16 Blow the man down	34
 		17 Cheer'ly, men	36
WINDLASS & CAPSTAN SHANTIES:		18 Good morning, ladies all	38
1 Billy Boy	2	19 Hanging Johnny	40
2 Bound for the Rio Grande	4	20 Hilo Somebody	42
3 Good-bye, fare ye well	6	21 Oh run, let the Bullgine run	44
4 Johnny come down to Hilo	8	22 Reuben Ranzo	46
5 Clear the track, let the Bullgine run	10	23 The Dead Horse	48
6 Lowlands away	12	24 Tom's gone to Hilo	50
7 Sally Brown	16	25 Whisky Johnny	52
8 Santy Anna	18	26 Boney was a warrior	54
9 Shenandoah	20
10 Stormalong John	22	FORE-SHEET OR SWEATING-UP SHANTIES:.
11 The Hog's-eye Man	24	27 Johnny Boker	55
12 The Wild Goose Shanty	26	28 Haul away, Joe	56
13 We're all bound to go	28	29 We'll haul the bowlin'	58
14 What shall we do with the drunken sailor?	30
		BUNT SHANTY:
		30 Paddy Doyle's boots	59

ALPHABETICAL INDEX OF SHANTIES

	PAGE		PAGE
Billy Boy	2	Johnny come down to Hilo	8
Blow, my bully boys	32	Lowlands away	12
Blow the man down	34	Oh run, let the Bullgine run	44
Boney was a warrior	54	Paddy Doyle's boots	59
Bound for the Rio Grande	4	Reuben Ranzo	46
Cheer'ly, men	36	Sally Brown	16
Clear the track, let the Bullgine run	10	Santy Anna	18
Dead Horse, The	48	Shenandoah	20
Good-bye, fare ye well	6	Stormalong John	22
Good morning, ladies all	38	Tom's gone to Hilo	50
Hanging Johnny,	40	We'll haul the bowlin'	58
Haul away, Joe	56	We're all bound to go	28
Hilo Somebody	42	What shall we do with the drunken sailor?	30
Hog's-eye Man, The	24	Whisky Johnny	52
Johnny Boker	55	Wild Goose Shanty, The	26

INTRODUCTION

APOLOGIA

IT may reasonably be asked by what authority a mere landsman publishes a book on a nautical subject. I may, therefore, plead in extenuation that I have all my life been closely connected with seafaring matters, especially during childhood and youth, and have literally 'grown up with' shanties. My maternal ancestors followed the sea as far back as the family history can be traced, and sailor uncles and grand-uncles have sung shanties to me from my childhood upwards. During boyhood I was constantly about amongst ships, and had learnt at first hand all the popular shanties before any collection of them appeared in print. I have in later years collected them from all manner of sailors, chiefly at Northumbrian sources. I have collated these later versions with those which I learnt at first hand as a boy from sailor relatives, and also aboard ship. And lastly, I lived for some years in the West Indies, one of the few remaining spots where shanties may still be heard, where my chief recreation was cruising round the islands in my little ketch. In addition to hearing them in West Indian seaports, aboard Yankee sailing ships and sugar droghers, I also heard them sung constantly on shore in Antigua under rather curious conditions. West Indian negro shanties are movable wooden huts, and when a family wishes to change its venue it does so in the following manner: [The shanty is levered up on to a low platform on wheels, to which two very long ropes are attached. The ropes are manned by as many hands as their length will admit. A 'shantyman' mounts the roof of the hut and sits astride it. He sings a song which has a chorus, and is an exact musical parallel of a seaman's 'pull-and-haul' shanty. The crowd below sings the chorus, giving a pull on the rope at the required points in the music, just as sailors did when hauling at sea.] Each pull on the rope draws the hut a short distance forward, and the process is continued till its final resting-place is reached, when the shantyman descends from the roof. The hut is then levered off the platform on to terra firma and fixed in its required position.

WHAT A SHANTY IS

[Shanties were labour songs sung by sailors of the merchant service only while at work, and never by way of recreation. Moreover—at least.

in the nineteenth century—they were never used aboard men-o'-war, where all orders were carried out in silence to the pipe of the bo'sun's whistle.]

Before the days of factories and machinery, all forms of work were literally manual labour, and all the world over the labourer, obeying a primitive instinct, sang at his toil: the harvester with his sickle, the weaver at the loom, the spinner at the wheel. Long after machinery had driven the labour-song from the land it survived at sea in the form of shanties, since all work aboard a sailing vessel was performed by hand.

The advent of screw steamers sounded the death-knell of the shanty. Aboard the steamer there were practically no sails to be manipulated; the donkey-engine and steam winch supplanted the hand-worked windlass and capstan. By the end of the seventies steam had driven the sailing ship from the seas. A number of sailing vessels lingered on through the eighties, but they retained little of the corporate pride and splendour that was once theirs. The old spirit was gone never to return.

When the sailing ship ruled the waters and the shanty was a living thing no one appears to have paid heed to it. To the landsman of those days—before folk-song hunting had begun—the haunting beauty of the tunes would appear to have made no appeal. This may be partly accounted for by the fact that he would never be likely to hear the sailor sing them ashore, and partly because of the Rabelaisian character of the words to which they were sung aboard ship. We had very prim notions of propriety in those days, and were apt to overlook the beauty of the melodies, and to speak of shanties in bulk as 'low vulgar songs.' Be that as it may, it was not until the late eighties—when the shanty was beginning to die out with the sailing ship—that any attempt was made to form a collection.

ORIGIN OF THE WORD

Here let me enter my protest against the literary preciosity which derives the word from (un) chanté and spells it 'chanty'—in other words, against the gratuitous assumption that unlettered British sailors derived one of the commonest words in their vocabulary from a foreign source. The result of this 'literary' spelling is that ninety-nine landmen out of every hundred, instead of pronouncing the word 'shanty,' rhyming with 'scanty' (as every sailor did), pronounce it 'tchahnty,' rhyming with 'auntie,' thereby courting the amusement or contempt of every seaman. The vogue of 'chanty' was apparently created by the late W. E. Henley, a fine poet, a great man of letters, a profound admirer of shanty tunes, but entirely unacquainted with nautical affairs. Kipling and other landsmen have given additional currency to the spelling. The 'literary' sailors, Clark Russell and Frank Bullen, have also spelt it 'chanty,' but their reason is obvious. The modest seaman always bowed before the landsman's presumed superiority in 'book-larnin'.' What more natural than that Russell and Bullen, obsessed by so ancient a tradition, should accept uncritically the landsman's spelling. But educated sailors devoid of 'literary' pretensions have always written the word as it was pronounced. To my mind the strongest argument against the literary landsman's derivation of the word is that the British sailor cultivated the supremest contempt for everything French, and would be the last person to label such a definitely British practice as shanty-singing with a French title. If there had been such a thing in French ships as a labour-song bearing such a far-fetched title as (un) chanté, there might have been a remote possibility of the British sailor adopting the French term in a spirit of sport or derision, but there is no evidence that any such practice, or any such term, achieved any vogue in French ships. As a matter of fact, the Oxford Dictionary (which prints it 'shanty') states that the word never found its way into print until 1869.

(v)

The truth is that, however plausible the French derivation theory may sound, it is after all pure speculation—and a landsman's speculation at that—unsupported by a shred of concrete evidence.

If I wished to advance another theory more plausible still, and equally unconvincing, I might urge that the word was derived from the negro hut-removals already mentioned. Here, at least, we have a very ancient custom, which would be familiar to British seamen visiting West Indian seaports. The object moved was a shanty; the music accompanying the operation was called, by the negroes, a shanty tune; its musical form (solo and chorus) was identical with the sailor shanty; the pulls on the rope followed the same method which obtained at sea; the soloist was called a shantyman; like the shantyman at sea he did no work, but merely extemporized verses to which the workers at the ropes supplied the chorus; and finally, the negroes still pronounce the word itself exactly as the seaman did.

I am quite aware of the flaws in the above argument, but at least it shows a manual labour act performed both afloat and ashore under precisely similar conditions as to (a) its nature, (b) its musical setting; called by the same name, with the same pronunciation in each case; and lastly, connected, in one case, with an actual hut or shanty. Against this concrete argument we have a landsman's abstract speculation, which (a) begs the whole question, and (b) which was never heard of until a few years before the disappearance of the sailing ship. I do not assert that the negroid derivation is conclusive, but that from (un) chanté will not bear serious inspection.

BIBLIOGRAPHY

The material under this head is very scanty. Nothing of any consequence was written before the eighties, when W. L. Alden, in Harper's Magazine, and James Runciman, in the St. James's Gazette and other papers, wrote articles on the subject with musical quotations. Since then several collections have appeared:

- 1887. Sailors' Songs or Chanties, the words by Frederick J. Davis, R.N.R., the music composed and arranged upon traditional sailor airs by Ferris Tozer, Mus.D. Oxon.
- 1888. The Music of the Waters, by Laura Alexandrine Smith.
- 1910 and 1912. Sea Songs, Ships, and Shanties, by Capt. W. B. Whall.
- 1912. Songs of Sea Labour, by Frank T. Bullen and W. F. Arnold.
- 1914. English Folk Chanteys with Pianoforte Accompaniment, collected by Cecil J. Sharp.

Of all these collections Capt. Whall's is the only one which a sailor could accept as authoritative. Capt. Whall unfortunately only gives the twenty-eight shanties which he himself learnt at sea. But to any one who has heard them sung aboard the old sailing ships, his versions ring true, and have a bite and a snap that is lacking in those published by mere collectors.

Davis and Tozer's book has had a great vogue, as it was for many years the only one on the market. But the statement that the music is 'composed and arranged on traditional sailor airs' rules it out of court in the eyes of seamen, since (a) a sailor song is not a shanty, and (b) to 'compose and arrange on traditional airs' is to destroy the traditional form.

Miss Smith's book is a thick volume into which was tumbled indiscriminately and uncritically a collection of all sorts of tunes from all sorts of countries which had any connection with seas, lakes, rivers, or their geographical equivalents. Scientific folk-song collecting was not understood in those days, and consequently all was fish that came to the authoress's net. Sailor shanties and landsmen's nautical effusions were jumbled together higgledy-piggledy, along with 'Full Fathom Five' and the 'Eton Boating Song.' But this lack of discrimination, pardonable in those days, was not so serious as the inability to write the tunes down correctly. So long as they were copied from other song-books they were not so bad, but when it came to taking them down from the seamen's singing the results were deplorable. Had the authoress been able to give us correct versions of the shanties her collection would have been a valuable one. The book contains altogether about thirty-two shanties collected from sailors in the Tyne seaports. Since both Miss Smith and myself hail from Newcastle, her 'hunting ground' for shanties was also mine, and I am consequently in a position to assess the importance or unimportance of her work. I may, therefore, say that although hardly a single shanty is noted down correctly, I can see clearly—having myself noted the same tunes in the same district—what she intended to convey, and furthermore can vouch for the accuracy of some of the words which were common to north country sailors, and which have not appeared in other collections.

If I have been obliged to criticize Miss Smith's book it is not because I wish to disparage a well-intentioned effort, but because I constantly hear The Music of the Waters quoted as an authoritative work on sailor shanties; and since the shanties in it were all collected in the district where I spent boyhood and youth, I am familiar with all of them, and can state definitely that they are in no sense authoritative. I should like, however, to pay my tribute of respect to Miss Smith's industry, and to her enterprise in calling attention to tunes that then seemed in a fair way to disappear.

Bullen and Arnold's book ought to have been a valuable contribution to shanty literature, as Bullen certainly knew his shanties, and used to sing them capitally. Unfortunately his musical collaborator does not appear to have been gifted with the faculty of taking down authentic versions from his singing. He seems to have had difficulty in differentiating between long measured notes and unmeasured pauses; between the respective meanings of three-four and six-eight time; between modal and modern tunes; and between the cases where irregular barring was or was not required. Apart from the amateur nature of the harmonies, the book exhibits such strange unacquaintance with the rudiments of musical notation as the following (p. 25):

A few other collections deserve mention:

- 1912. The Espérance Morris Book, Part II (Curwen Edition 8571), contains five shanties collected and arranged by Clive Carey.
- 1914. Shanties and Forebitters, collected and accompaniments written by Mrs. Clifford Beckett (Curwen Edition 6293).
- Journal of the Folk-Song Society*, Nos. 12, 18, and 20, contain articles on shanties, with musical examples (melodies only), which, from the academic point of view, are not without interest.
- 1920. The Motherland Song Book (Vols. III and IV, edited by R. Vaughan Williams) contains seven shanties. It is worthy of note that Dr. Vaughan Williams, Mr. Clive Carey, and Mrs. Clifford Beckett all spell the word 'shanty' as sailors pronounced it.
- 1920. Sailor Shanties arranged for Solo and Chorus of Men's Voices by the present editor; two selections (Curwen Edition 50571 and 50572).

There are one or two other collections in print which are obviously compilations, showing no original research. Of these I make no note.

SHANTY FORMS

Shanties may be roughly divided, as regards their use, into two classes: (a) Hauling shanties, and (b) Windlass and Capstan. The former class accompanied the setting of the sails, and the latter the weighing of the anchor, or 'warping her in' to the wharf, etc. Capstan shanties were also used for pumping ship. A few shanties were 'interchangeable,' i.e. they were used for both halliards and capstan. The subdivisions of each class are interesting, and the nature of the work involving 'walk away,' 'stamp and go,' 'sweating her up,' 'hand over hand,' and other types of shanty would make good reading; but nautical details, however fascinating, must be economized in a musical publication.

Capstan shanties are readily distinguishable by their music. The operation of walking round the capstan (pushing the capstan bars in front of them) was continuous and not intermittent. Both tune and chorus were, as a rule, longer than those of the hauling shanty, and there was much greater variety of rhythm. Popular songs, if they had a chorus or refrain, could be, and were, effectively employed for windlass and capstan work.

Hauling shanties were usually shorter than capstan ones, and are of two types: (a) those used for 'the long hoist' and (b) those required for 'the short pull' or 'sweating-up.' Americans called these operations the 'long' and the 'short drag.' The former was used when beginning to hoist sails, when the gear would naturally be slack and moderately easy to manipulate. It had two short choruses, with a double pull in each. In the following example, the pulls are marked \wedge .

REUBEN RANZO

SOLO.

Oh pi ty poor Reu - ben Ran - zo,

CHORUS. SOLO.

Ranzo, boys, Ranzo, Oh poor old Reu - ben

CHORUS.

Ran - zo, Ran-zo, boys, Ran-zo.

It is easy to see how effective a collective pull at each of these points would be, while the short intervals of solo would give time for shifting the hands on the rope and making ready for the next combined effort.

When the sail was fully hoisted and the gear taut, a much stronger pull was necessary in order to make everything fast, so the shanty was then changed for a 'sweating-up' one, in which there was only one short chorus and one very strong pull:

HAUL THE BOWLIN'

SOLO.

We'll haul the bow - lin', so ear - ly in the morn - ing,

CHORUS.

We'll haul the bow - lin', the bow - lin' haul.

(viii)

So much effort was now required on the pull that it was difficult to sing a musical note at that point. The last word was therefore usually shouted.

SOURCES OF TUNES

The sailor travelled in many lands, and in his shanties there are distinct traces of the nationalities of the countries he visited. Without doubt a number of them came from American negro sources. The songs heard on Venetian gondolas must have had their effect, as many examples show. There are also distinct traces of folk-songs which the sailor would have learnt ashore in his native fishing village, and the more familiar Christy Minstrel song was frequently pressed into the service. As an old sailor once said to me: 'You can make anything into a shanty.'

Like all traditional tunes, some shanties are in the ancient modes, and others in the modern major and minor keys. It is the habit of the 'folk-singer' (I am not alluding to our recognized folk-song experts) to find 'modes' in every traditional tune. It will suffice, therefore, to say that shanties follow the course of all other traditional music. Many are modern, and easily recognizable as such. Others are modal in character, such as 'What shall we do with the drunken sailor?' No. 14, and 'The Hog's-Eye Man,' No. 11. Others fulfil to a certain extent modal conditions, but are nevertheless in keys, e.g. 'Stormalong John,' No. 10.

Like many other folk-songs, certain shanties—originally, no doubt, in a mode—were, by the insertion of leading notes, converted into the minor key. There was also the tendency on the part of the modern sailor to turn his minor key into a major one. I sometimes find sailors singing in the major, nowadays, tunes which the very old men of my boyhood used to sing in the minor. A case in point is 'Haul away, Joe,' No. 28. Miss Smith is correct in giving it in the minor form which once obtained on the Tyne, and I am inclined to hazard the opinion that that was the original form and not, as now, the following:

Way, haul a - way, We'll haul a-way the bow - lin'.

Way, haul a - way, We'll haul a - way, Joe.

In later times I have also heard 'The Drunken Sailor' (a distinctly modal tune) sung in the major as follows:

I have generally found that these perversions of the tunes are due to sailors who took to the sea as young men in the last days of the sailing ship, and consequently did not imbibe to the full the old traditions. With the intolerance of youth they assumed that the modal turn given to a shanty by the older sailor was the mark of ignorance, since it did not square with their ideas of a major or minor key. This experience is common to all folk-tune collectors.

Other characteristics, for example: (a) different words to the same melody; (b) different melodies to the same or similar words, need not be enlarged upon here, as they will be self-evident when a definitive collection is published.

Of the usual troubles incidental to folk-song collecting it is unnecessary to speak. But the collection of shanties involves difficulties of a special kind. In taking down a folk-song from a rustic, one's chief difficulty is surmounted when one has broken down his shyness and induced him to sing. There is nothing for him to do then but get on with the song. Shanties, however, being labour songs, one is 'up against' the strong psychological connection between the song and its manual acts. Two illustrations will explain what I mean.

A friend of mine who lives in Kerry wished a collector to hear some of the traditional keening, and an old woman with the reputation of being the best keener in the district, when brought to the house to sing the funeral chants, made several attempts and then replied in a distressed manner: 'I can't do it; there's no body.' This did not mean that she was unwilling to kee in the absence of a corpse, but that she was unable to do so. Just before giving up in despair my friend was seized with a brain wave, and asked her if it would suffice for him to lie down on the floor and personate the corpse. When he had done this the old woman found herself able to get on with the keening.

An incident related to me quite casually by Sir Walter Runciman throws a similar light on the inseparability of a shanty and its labour. He described how one evening several north country ships happened to be lying in a certain port. All the officers and crews were ashore, leaving only the apprentices aboard, some of whom, as he remarked, were 'very keen on shanties,' and their suggestion of passing away the time by singing some was received with enthusiasm. The whole party of about thirty apprentices at once collected themselves aboard one vessel, sheeted home the main topsail, and commenced to haul it up to the tune of 'Boney was a warrior,' changing to 'Haul the Bowlin'' for 'sweating-up.' In the enthusiasm of their singing, and the absence of any officer to call 'Vast hauling,' they continued operations until they broke the topsail yard in two, when the sight of the wreckage and the fear of consequences brought the singing to an abrupt conclusion. In my then ignorance I naturally asked: 'Why couldn't you have sung shanties without hoisting the topsail?' and the reply was: 'How could we sing a shanty without having our hands on the rope?' Here we have the whole psychology of the labour-song: the old woman could not kee without the 'body,' and the young apprentices could not sing shanties apart from the work to which they belonged. The only truly satisfactory results which I ever get nowadays from an old sailor are when he has been stimulated by conversation to become reminiscent, and croons his shanties almost subconsciously. Whenever I find a sailor willing to declaim shanties in the style of a song I begin to be a little suspicious of his seamanship. In one of the journals of the Folk-Song Society there is an account of a sailor who formed a little party of seafaring men to give public performances of shanties on the concert platform. No doubt this was an interesting experience for the listeners, but that a self-conscious performance such as this could represent the old shanty singing I find it difficult to believe. Of course I have had sailors sing shanties to me in a fine declamatory manner, but I usually found one of three things to be the case: the man was a 'sea lawyer,' or had not done much deep-sea sailing; or his seamanship only dated from the decline of the sailing vessel.

It is doubtless interesting to the folk-singer to see in print shanties taken down from an individual sailor with his individual melodic twirls and twiddles. But since no two sailors ever sing the same shanty quite in the same manner, there must necessarily be some means of getting at the tune, unhampered by these individual idiosyncrasies, which are quite a different thing from what folk-song students recognize as 'variants.' The power to discriminate can only be acquired by familiarity with the shanty as it was in its palmy days. The collector who comes upon the scene at this late time of day must necessarily be at a disadvantage. The ordinary methods which he would apply to a folk-song break down in the case of a labour-song. Manual actions were the soul of the shanty; eliminate these and you have only the skeleton of what was once a living thing. It is quite possible, I know, to push this line of argument too far, but every one who knows anything about seamanship must feel that a shanty nowadays cannot be other than a pale reflection of what it once was.

That is why I deprecate the spurious authenticity conferred by print upon isolated versions of shanties sung by individual old men. When the originals are available it seems to me pedantic and academic to put into print the comic mispronunciations of well-known words by old and uneducated seamen.

And this brings me to the last difficulty which confronts the collector with no previous knowledge of shanties. As a mere matter of dates, any sailors now remaining from sailing ship days must necessarily be very old men. I have found that their octogenarian memories are not always to be trusted. On one occasion an old man sang quite glibly a tune which was in reality a pasticcio of three separate shanties all known to me. I have seen similar results in print, since the collector arrived too late upon the scene to be able to detect the tricks which an old man's memory played him.

One final remark about collectors which has an important bearing upon the value of their work. There were two classes of sailing vessels that sailed from English ports—the coaster or the mere collier that plied between the Tyne or Severn and Boulogne, and the Southspainer, under which term was comprised all deep-sea vessels. On the collier or short-voyage vessel the crew was necessarily a small one, and the shanty was more or less of a makeshift, adapted to the capacity of the limited numbers of the crew. Purely commercial reasons precluded the engagement of any shantyman specially distinguished for his musical attainments. Consequently, so far as the shanty was concerned, 'any old thing would do.' On the Southspainer, however, things were very different. The shantyman was usually a person of considerable musical importance, who sang his songs in a more or less finished manner; his melodies were clean, clear-cut things, without any of the folk-singer's quavers and wobbles. I heard them in the 'seventies and 'eighties before the sailing-ship had vanished, consequently I give them as they were then sung—undisfigured and unobscured by the mixture of twirls, quavers, and hiccups one hears from octogenarian mariners who attempt them to-day.

(x)

METHOD OF SINGING

So far as the music was concerned, a shanty was a song with a chorus. The song was rendered by one singer, called the shantyman, and the chorus by the sailors who performed their work in time with the music. So far as the words were concerned there was usually a stereotyped opening of one or more verses. For all succeeding verses the shantyman improvised words, and his topics were many and varied, the most appreciated naturally being personal allusions to the crew and officers, sarcastic criticism on the quality of the food, wistful references to the good time coming on shore, etc. There was no need for any connection or relevancy between one verse or another, nor were rhymes required. The main thing that mattered was that the rhythm should be preserved and that the words should be such as would keep the workers merry or interested. Once the stereotyped verses were got rid of and the improvisation began, things became so intimate and personal as to be unprintable. It was a curious fact that such shanty words as lent themselves most to impropriety were wedded to tunes either of fine virility or haunting sweetness.

For 'pull-and-haul' shanties the shantyman took up his position near the workers and announced the shanty, sometimes by singing the first line. This established the tune to which they were to supply the chorus. For capstan shanties he usually did the same. He frequently sat on the capstan, but so far as I can learn he more usually took up his position on or against the knightheads. The importance of the shantyman could not be overestimated. A good shantyman with a pretty wit was worth his weight in gold. He was a privileged person, and was excused all work save light or odd jobs.

THE WORDS OF SHANTIES

I have already noted the shanties which were derived from popular songs, also the type which contained a definite narrative. Except where a popular song was adapted, the form was usually rhymed or more often unrhymed couplets. The topics were many and varied, but the chief ones were: (1) popular heroes such as Napoleon, and 'Santy Anna.' That the British sailor of the eighteenth century should hate every Frenchman and yet make a hero of Bonaparte is one of the mysteries which has never been explained. Another mystery is the fascination which Antonio Lopez de Santa Anna (1795-1876) exercised over the sailor. He was one of the many Mexican 'Presidents' and was defeated by the American General Taylor in 1847. That did not prevent the British sailor presenting him in the light of an invariable victor until he was led out to be shot (he really died a natural death) by persons unknown. (2) The sailor had mythical heroes too, e.g. 'Ranzo,' already mentioned, and 'Stormy,' who was the theme of many shanties. No sailor could ever give the least explanation of them, and so they remain the last echoes of long forgotten sagas. (3) High-sounding, poetic, or mysterious words, such as 'Lowlands,' 'Shenandoah,' 'Rolling river,' 'Hilo,' 'Mobile Bay,' 'Rio Grande,' had a great fascination, as their constant recurrence in many shanties shows. (4) The sailor also sang much of famous ships, such as 'The Flying Cloud,' 'The Henry Clay,' or 'The Victory,' and famous lines, such as 'The Black Ball.' Even famous shipowners were celebrated in song, as witness 'Mr. John Tapscott,' in 'We're all bound to go.' (5) Love affairs, in which 'Lizer Lee' and other damsels constantly figured, were an endless topic. (6) But chiefly did Jack sing of affairs connected with his ship. He never sang of 'the rolling main,' 'the foaming billows,' 'the storm clouds,' etc. These are the stock-in-trade of the landsman; they were too real for the sailor to sing about. He had the instinct of the primitive man which forbids mention of natural forces of evil omen. But intimate or humorous matters such as the failings of his officers, the quality of the food, the rate of pay, or other grievances were treated with vigour and emphasis. Like the Britisher of to-day, he would put up with any hardship so long as he were permitted to grouse about it. The shantyman gave humorous expression to this grouching, which deprived it of the element of sulks. Steam let off in this way was a wholesome preventive of mutiny.

The choruses were usually jingles, with no relevance save maintenance of the rhythm.

One feature of the words may be noted. The sailor's instinct for romance was so strong that in his choruses, at least, no matter how 'hair-curling' the solo might be, he always took the crude edge off the concrete and presented it as an abstraction if possible. For example, he knew perfectly well that one meaning of 'to blow' was to knock or kick. He knew that discipline in Yankee packets was maintained by corporeal methods, so much so that the Mates, to whom the function of knocking the 'packet rats' about was delegated, were termed first, second, and third 'blowers,' or strikers, and in the shanty he sang 'Blow the man down.' 'Knock' or 'kick,' as I have recently seen in a printed collection, was too crudely realistic for him. In like manner the humorous title, 'Hog's-eye,' veiled the coarse intimacy of the term which it represented. And that is where, when collecting shanties from the 'longshore' mariner of to-day, I find him, if he is uneducated, so tiresome. He not only wants to explain to me as a landsman the exact meaning (which I know already) of terms which the old type of sailor, with his natural delicacy, avoided discussing, but he tries where possible to work them into his shanty, a thing the sailor of old time never did. So that when one sees in print expressions which sailors did not use, it is presumptive evidence that the collector has been imposed upon by a salt of the 'sea lawyer' type.

Perhaps I ought to make this point clearer. Folk-song collecting was once an artistic pursuit. Now it has become a flourishing industry of high commercial value. From the commercial point of view it is essential that results should be printed and circulated as widely as possible. Some knowledge of seamanship is an absolute necessity where folk-shanties are concerned. The mere collector nowadays does not possess that knowledge; it is confined to those who have had practical experience of the sea, but who will never print their experiences. The mere collector must print his versions. What is unprinted must remain unknown; what is printed is therefore accepted as authoritative, however misleading it may be. Many highly educated men, of whom Captain Whall is the type, have followed the sea. It is from them that the only really trustworthy information is forthcoming. But so far as I can judge, it is uneducated men who appear to sing to collectors nowadays, and I have seen many a quiet smile on the lips of the educated sailor when he is confronted with printed versions of the uneducated seaman's performances. For example, one of the best known of all shanties is 'The Hog's-eye man'; I have seen this entitled 'The Hog-eyed man,' and even 'The Ox-eyed man.' Every old sailor knew the meaning of the term. Whall and Bullen, who were both sailors, use the correct expression, 'Hog-eye.' The majority of sailors of my acquaintance called it 'Hog's-eye.' Did decency permit I could show conclusively how Whall and Bullen are right and the mere collector wrong. It must suffice, however, for me to say that the term 'Hog's-eye' or 'Hog-eye' had nothing whatever to do with the optic of the 'man' who was sung about. I could multiply instances, but this one is typical and must suffice.

We hear a great deal of the coarseness and even lewdness of the shanty, but I could wish a little more stress were laid on the sailor's natural delicacy. Jack was always a gentleman in feeling. Granted his drinking, cursing, and amours—but were not these, until Victorian times, the hall-mark of every gentleman ashore? The Rabelaisian jokes of the shantyman were solos, the sound of which would not travel far beyond the little knot of workers who chuckled over them. The choruses—shouted out by the whole working party—would be heard all over the ship and even penetrate ashore if she were in port. Hence, in not a single instance do the choruses of any shanty contain a coarse expression.

EDITORIAL METHODS

As regards the tunes, I have adhered to the principle of giving each one as it was sung by some individual singer. This method has not been applied to the words. Consequently the verses of any given shanty may have derived from any number of singers. Since there was no connection or relevancy between the different verses of a shanty, the only principle I have adhered to is that whatever verses are set down should have been sung to me at some time or other by some sailor or other.

Of course I have had to camouflage many unprintable expressions, and old sailors will readily recognize where this has been done. Sometimes a whole verse (after the first line) has needed camouflage, and the method adopted is best expressed as follows:

There was a young lady of Gloucester
Who couldn't eat salt with her egg,
And when she sat down
She could never get up,
And so the poor dog had none.

As regards the accompaniments, I have been solely guided by the necessity of preserving the character of the melodies in all their vigour and vitality, and have tried, even in obviously modal tunes, not to obscure their breeziness by academic treatment.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

Amongst those to whom I owe thanks, I must number the Editors of The Music Student and Music and Letters, for allowing me to incorporate in this Preface portions of articles which I have written for them. Also to Capt. W. J. Dowdy, both for singing shanties to me himself, and affording me facilities for interviewing inmates of the Royal Albert Institution, over which he presides. I also wish to express my gratitude to those sailors who have in recent years sung shanties to me, especially Capt. R. W. Robertson, Mr. Geo. Vickers, Mr. Richard Allen, of Seahouses, and Mr. F. B. Mayoss. And last, but not least, to Mr. Morley Roberts, who has not only sung shanties to me, but has also given me the benefit of his ripe nautical experience.

R R. T.

Hampstead, 1921.

NOTES ON THE SHANTIES

1. BILLY BOY

This is undoubtedly a coast song 'made into a shanty.' I heard it in Northumberland, both on shore and in ships, when I was a boy. The theme of a 'Boy Billy' seems common to folk-songs in different parts of the country. The tunes are different, and the words vary, but the topic is always the same: 'Billy' is asked where he has been all the day; he replies that he has been courting; he is then questioned as to the qualifications of his inamorata as a housewife. Dr. Vaughan-Williams's 'My Boy Billie' is in print and well known, as is also Mr. Cecil Sharp's 'My Boy Willie' ['English Folk-Songs,' vol. 1, page 98]. I have also collected different versions in Warwickshire and Somerset. The version of line 1, page 3, bars 2 and 3, is older than the one given in my arrangement for male-voice chorus (Curwen Edition 50572), so, upon consideration, I decided to give it here. There are many more verses, but they are not printable, nor do they readily lend themselves to camouflage. The tune has not appeared in print until now.

2. BOUND FOR THE RIO GRANDE

The variants of this noble tune are legion. But this version, which a sailor uncle taught me, has been selected, as I think it the most beautiful of all. I used to notice, even as a boy, how it seemed to inspire the shantyman to sentimental flights of Heimweh that at times came perilously near poetry. The words of the well-known song, 'Where are you going to, my pretty maid?' were frequently sung to this shanty, and several sailors have told me that they had also used the words of the song known as 'The Fishes.' Capt. Whall gives 'The Fishes' on pages 96 and 97 of his book, and says that the words were, in his time, sometimes used to the tune of 'Blow the man down.'

3. GOOD-BYE, FARE YE WELL

This is one of the best beloved of shanties. So strongly did its sentiment appeal to sailors that one never heard the shantyman extemporize a coarse verse to it. Whall prints a version, page 71.

4. JOHNNY COMES DOWN TO HILO

This is clearly of negro origin. I learnt several variants of it, but for its present form I am indebted to Capt. W. J. Dowdy.

5. CLEAR THE TRACK, LET THE BULLGINE RUN

The tune was a favourite in Yankee Packets. It does not appear in Whall. 'Bullgine' was American negro slang for 'engine.' I picked up this version in boyhood from Blyth seamen.

6. LOWLANDS

For another version see Whall (page 80), who says it is of American origin and comes from the cotton ports of the old Southern States. It was well known to every sailor down to the time of the China Clippers. My version is that of Capt. John Runciman, who belonged to that period. I have seldom found it known to sailors who took to the sea after the early seventies. The tune was sung in very free time and with great solemnity. It is almost impossible to reproduce in print the elusive subtlety of this haunting melody. In North-country ships the shantyman used to make much of the theme of a dead lover appearing in the night. There were seldom any rhymes, and the air was indescribably touching when humoured by a good hand. A 'hoosier,' by the way, is a cotton stevedore. An interesting point about this shanty is that, whether by accident or design, it exhibits a rhythmic device commonly practised by mediæval composers, known as proportio sesquialtera. Expressed in modern notation it would mean the interpolation of bars of three-four time in the course of a composition which was in six-eight time. The number of quavers would, of course, be the same in each bar; but the rhythm would be different. The barring here adopted does not show this.

7. SALLY BROWN

For another version of this universally known shanty see Whall, page 64. Although its musical form is that of a halliard shanty, it was always used for the capstan. I never heard it used for any other purpose than heaving the anchor. The large-sized notes given in the last bar are those which most sailors sing to me nowadays; the small ones are those which I most frequently heard when a boy.

8. SANTY ANNA

This fine shanty was a great favourite, and in defiance of all history the sailor presents 'Santy Anna' in the light of an invariable victor. The truth is that Antonio Lopez de Santa Anna (1795–1876) was the last President of Mexico before the annexation by America of California, Texas, and New Mexico. He defeated the Spaniards at Zampico, and held Vera Cruz against the French, but was badly beaten at Molina del Rey by the United States Army under General Taylor (1847). He was recalled to the Presidency in 1853, but overthrown in 1855. He attempted to overturn the Republic in 1867; was captured and sentenced to death, but was pardoned on condition that he left the country. He retired to the United States until 1872, when a general amnesty allowed his return to Mexico. Like other Mexican Presidents, he lived a stormy life, but unlike most of them he died a natural death. Whall gives a version on page 89.

9. SHENANDOAH

This is one of the most famous of all shanties. I never met a sailor to whom it was unknown, nor have I ever found any two who sang it exactly alike. This version (sung to me by Capt. Robertson) is almost, but not quite, identical with the one I learnt as a boy. Shenandoah (English seamen usually pronounced it 'Shannandore') was a celebrated Indian chief after whom an American town is named. A branch of the Potomac river bears the same name. The tune was always sung with great feeling and in very free rhythm. Whall gives a version on page 1.

10. STORMALONG JOHN

This is one of the many shanties with 'Stormy' as their hero. Whatever other verses were extemporized, those relating to digging his grave with a silver spade, and lowering him down with a golden chain, were rarely omitted. Other favourite verses were:

- (a) I wish I was old Stormy's son.
- (b) I'd build a ship a thousand ton.

Who 'Stormy' was is undiscoverable, but more than a dozen shanties mourn him.

11. THE HOG'S-EYE MAN

Of the numberless versions of this shanty I have chosen that of Capt. Robertson as being the most representative. Of the infinite number of verses to this fine tune hardly one is printable. There has been much speculation as to the origin of the title. As a boy my curiosity was piqued by reticence, evasion, or declarations of ignorance, whenever I asked the meaning of the term. It was only in later life that I learnt it from Mr. Morley Roberts. His explanation made it clear why every sailor called it either 'hog-eye' or 'hog's-eye,' and why only landsmen editors ever get the word wrong. One collector labels the shanty 'The hog-eyed man,' and another goes still further wide of the mark by calling it 'The ox-eyed man.' The remarks on this shanty in the Preface will show the absurdity of both titles. That is all the explanation I am at liberty to give in print. Whall gives the shanty on page 118, his version differing but slightly from Capt. Robertson's.

12. THE WILD GOOSE SHANTY

This I learnt from Capt. John Runciman. Allusions to 'The Wild Goose Nation' occur in many shanties, but I never obtained any clue to the meaning (if any) of the term. The verse about 'huckleberry hunting' was rarely omitted, but I never heard that particular theme further developed. Whall gives another version (in six-eight time) on page 131.

13. WE'RE ALL BOUND TO GO

I used to hear this tune constantly on the Tyne. It is one of the few shanties which preserved a definite narrative, but each port seems to have offered variants on the names of the ships that were 'bound for Amerikee.' 'Mr. Tapscott' was the head of a famous line of emigrant ships. The last word in verse 5 was always pronounced male. This has led to many shantymen treating it not as meal, but as the mail which the ship carried. As the shanty is full of Irish allusions, the probabilities are that the word was meal, to which the sailor gave what he considered to be the Irish pronunciation. Whenever I heard the shanty it was given with an attempt at Irish pronunciation throughout. Capt. Whall (page 79) gives additional colour to the supposition that this was a general practice, for his version of verse 6 runs:

'Bad luck unto them say-boys,
Bad luck to them I say;
They broke into me say-chest
And they stole me clothes away.'

14. WHAT SHALL WE DO WITH THE DRUNKEN SAILOR?

This fine tune—in the first Mode—was always a great favourite. Although mostly used for windlass or capstan, Sir Walter Runciman tells me that he frequently sang to it for 'hand-over-hand' hauling. Whall gives it on page 107 under the title 'Early in the morning.' It is one of the few shanties that were sung in quick time.

15. BLOW, MY BULLY BOYS

This shanty has been included in every collection that I know of. (See Whall, page 91.)

Most of my sailor relatives sang the last line thus:

Her masts and yards they shine like silver.

Spotless decks, and 'masts and yards that shone like silver,' were the distinguishing marks of a Yankee Packet, and this immaculate condition was the result of a terrible discipline, in which the belaying pin was a gruesome factor.

16. BLOW THE MAN DOWN

This is the shanty which is perhaps the best known among landsmen. 'Winchester Street' is in South Shields, and in the old days was the aristocratic quarter where only persons of high distinction—such as shipowners, and 'South-spainer' skippers—lived. Whall gives the shanty on page 92.

17. CHEER'LY, MEN

This is a very well-known shanty, and the variants of it are endless. This particular version was sung to me by Capt. R. W. Robertson. It differs but slightly from the version which I originally learnt from Sir Walter Runciman. Very few of the words were printable, and old sailors who read my version will no doubt chuckle over the somewhat pointless continuation of the verses concerning Kitty Carson and Polly Riddle. They will, of course, see the point of my having supplied a Chopinesque accompaniment to such a shanty.

18. GOOD MORNING, LADIES ALL

The title belongs to other shanties as well; but, so far as I know, this tune has never been printed until now. I learnt it from Northumbrian sailors when a very small boy, and have never heard of its use in any other than Blyth and Tyne ships. It may be a Northumbrian air, but from such knowledge as I have gleaned of Northumbrian folk-tunes, I incline to the conjecture that it may have been picked up in more southern latitudes by some Northumbrian seaman.

19. HANGING JOHNNY

This cheery riot of gore is wedded to the most plaintive of tunes, and is immortalized by Masefield in his 'Sailor's Garland.' Nowadays one occasionally meets unhumorous longshore sailormen who endeavour to temper its fury to the shorn landsman by palming off a final verse, which gives one to understand that the previous stanzas have been only 'Johnny's' little fun, and which makes him bleat:

'They said I hanged for money,
But I never hanged nobody.'

I also possess a shanty collection where the words have so clearly shocked the editor that he has composed an entirely fresh set. These exhibit 'Johnny' as a spotless moralist, who would never really hang his parents, but would only operate (in a Pickwickian sense of course) on naughty and unworthy people:

'I'd hang a noted liar,
I'd hang a bloated friar.
'I'd hang a brutal mother,
I'd hang her and no other.
'I'd hang to make things jolly,
I'd hang all wrong and folly.'

Imagine a shantyman (farceur as he ever was) making for edification in that style!

20. HILO SOMEBODY

This is another of the shanties I learnt as a boy from Blyth sailors, and which has never been printed before. I fancy that 'blackbird' and 'crew' must be a perversion of 'blackbird and crow,' as the latter figure of speech occurs in other shanties.

21. OH, RUN, LET THE BULLGINE RUN

The reference to the 'Bullgine' seems to suggest Transatlantic origin. There were endless verses, but no attempt at narrative beyond a recital of the names of places from which and to which they were 'running.' This version was sung to me by Mr. F. B. Mayoss, a seaman who sailed in the old China Clippers.

22. REUBEN RANZO

Alden gives this version, and I fancy it may have once been fairly general, as several of my relatives used to sing it. The version I mostly heard from other sailors, however, began:

Oh, pi-ty poor Reu-ben Ran-zo.

But from Mr. Morley Roberts I had the following:

Oh, pi-ty poor Reu-ben Ran-zo.

Capt. Robertson's version ran thus:

Oh, poor old Reu-ben Ran-zo,

Ran-zo, boys, Ranzo, Oh, poor old Reu-ben

Ran-zo, Ran-zo, boys, Ran-zo.

Whall gives another version on page 84.

Who Ranzo was must ever remain a mystery. Capt. Whall suggests that the word might be a corruption of Lorenzo, since Yankee Whalers took many Portuguese men from the Azores, where Lorenzo would have been a common enough name. He adds that in his time the shanty was always sung to the regulation words, and that 'when the story was finished there was no attempt at improvization; the text was, I suppose, considered sacred.' He further says that he never heard any variation from the words which he gives.

I think he is right about the absence of improvization on extraneous topics, but I used to hear a good deal of improvization on the subject of Ranzo himself. I knew at least three endings of the story: (1) where the captain took him into the cabin, 'larned him navigation,' and eventually married him to his daughter; (2) where Ranzo's hatred of ablutions caused the indignant crew to throw him overboard; (3) where the story ended with the lashes received, not for his dirty habits, but for a theft:

'We gave him lashes thirty
For stealin' the captain's turkey.'

I have also heard many extemporaneous verses relating his adventures among the denizens of the deep after he was thrown overboard.

23. THE DEAD HORSE

This shanty was used both for hauling and for pumping ship. It seems to have had its origin in a rite which took place after the crew had 'worked off the dead horse.' The circumstances were these: Before any voyage, the crew received a month's pay in advance, which, needless to say, was spent ashore before the vessel sailed. Jack's first month on sea was therefore spent in clearing off his advance, which he called working off the dead horse. The end of that payless period was celebrated with a solemn ceremony: a mass of straw, or whatever other combustibles were to hand, was made up into a big bundle, which sometimes did, and more often did not, resemble a horse. This was dragged round the deck by all hands, the shanty being sung meanwhile. The perambulation completed, the dead horse was lighted and hauled up, usually to the main-yardarm, and when the flames had got a good hold, the rope was cut and the blazing mass fell into the sea, amid shouts of jubilation.

24. TOM'S GONE TO HILO

This beautiful tune was very popular. I have chosen the version sung to me by Mr. George

(xvi)

Vickers, although in the first chorus it differs somewhat from the version I learnt as a boy:

It will be seen how closely the above resembles the version given by Whall on page 74. (It will be noted that he entitled it 'John's gone to Hilo.') I give Mr. Vickers's verses about 'The Victory' and 'Trafalgar,' as I had never heard them sung by any other seaman. I have omitted the endless couplets containing the names of places to which Tommy is supposed to have travelled. As Capt. Whall says: 'A good shanty-man would take Johnny all round the world to ports with three syllables, Montreal, Rio Grande Newfoundland, or any such as might occur to him.'

25. WHISKY JOHNNY

This Bacchanalian chant was a prime favourite. Every sailor knew it, and every collection includes some version of it.

26. BONEY WAS A WARRIOR

I never met a seaman who has not hoisted topsails to this shanty. Why Jack should have made a hero of Boney (he frequently pronounced it 'Bonny') is a mystery, except perhaps that, as a sailor, he realized the true desolation of imprisonment on a sea-girt island, and his sympathies went out to the lonely exile accordingly. Or it may have been the natural liking of the Briton for any enemy who proved himself a 'bonny fechter.'

27. JOHNNY BOKER

This popular shanty was sometimes used for bunting-up a sail, but more usually for 'sweating-up.' Although I have allowed the last note its full musical value, it was not prolonged in this manner aboard ship. As it coincided with the pull, it usually sounded more like a staccato grunt.

28. HAUL AWAY, JOE

The major version of this shanty (which appears in Part II) was more general in the last days of the sailing ship; but this minor version (certainly the most beautiful of them) is the one which I used to hear on the Tyne. The oldest of my sailor relatives never sang any other. This inclines me to the belief that it is the earlier version. The verses extemporized to this shanty were endless, but those concerning the Nigger Girl and King Louis never seem to have been omitted. As in No. 27, I have allowed the last note its full musical value, but aboard ship it was sung in the same manner as No. 27.

29. WE'LL HAUL THE BOWLIN'

This was the most popular shanty for 'sweating-up.' There are many variants of it. The present version I learnt from Capt. John Runciman. In this shanty no attempt was ever made to sing the last word. It was always shouted.

30. PADDY DOYLE'S BOOTS

This shanty differs from all others, as (a) it was sung tutti throughout; (b) it had only one verse, which was sung over and over again; and (c) it was used for one operation and one operation only, viz. bunting up the foresail or mainsail in furling. In this operation the canvas of the sail was folded intensively until it formed a smooth conical bundle. This was called a bunt, and a strong collective effort (at the word 'boots') was required to get it on to the yard.

Although the same verse was sung over and over again, very occasionally a different text would be substituted, which was treated in the same manner. Capt. Whall gives two alternatives, which were sometimes used:

'We'll all drink brandy and gin,' and—

'We'll all shave under the chin.'

Mr. Morley Roberts also told me that a variant in his ship was—

'We'll all throw dirt at the cook.'

THE SHANTY BOOK.

PART I.

1. Billy Boy.

(NORTHUMBRIAN CAPSTAN SHANTY.)

VOICE.

M. ♩ = 112.

PIANO.

SOLO.

1. Where hev ye been aal the day, Bil - ly Boy, Bil - ly Boy?

CHORUS.

SOLO.

Where hev ye been aal the day, me Bil - ly Boy? — I've been walk - in' aal the day — With me charm-in' Nan - cy Grey. And me

CHORUS.

Nan - cy kit - tld me fan - cy Oh me charm-in' Bil - ly Boy.

2. Is she fit to be yor wife
Billy Boy, Billy Boy?

Is she fit to be yor wife, me Billy Boy?
She's as fit to be me wife
As the fork is to the knife
And me Nancy, etc.

3. Can she cook a bit o' steak
Billy Boy, Billy Boy?

Can she cook a bit o' steak, me Billy Boy?
She can cook a bit o' steak,
Aye, and myek a gairdle cake
And me Nancy, etc.

4. Can she myek an Irish Stew
Billy Boy, Billy Boy?

Can she myek an Irish Stew, me Billy Boy?
She can myek an Irish Stew
Aye, and "Singin' Hinnies" too.
And me Nancy, etc.

Glossary:—

aal = all. Pronounced to rhyme with "shall" only the vowel must be very much more prolonged.

kittled = tickled.

myek = make.

gairdle cake = girdle cake, i.e. a cake baked on a griddle.

Singin' Hinnies — i.e. a species of Sally Lunn teacake only larger. Usually plentifully besprinkled with currants, in which case it is designated by pitmen as "Singin' Hinnies wi' smaa co fizzors" (small coal fizzers.)

2. Bound for the Rio Grande.

(WINDLASS AND CAPSTAN SHANTY.)

M. ♩. = 60.

SOLO.

1. I'll sing you a song of the

CHORUS.

SOLO.

fish of the sea. Oh _____ Ri - o. _____ I'll sing you a song of the fish of the sea And we're

CHORUS.

Red. * Red. *

The musical score is written in 6/8 time with a key signature of two flats (B-flat and E-flat). It consists of three systems of music. The first system is a solo section for the voice, with piano accompaniment in the lower staves. The second system is a chorus section, also with piano accompaniment. The third system is another chorus section, with piano accompaniment. The lyrics are: '1. I'll sing you a song of the fish of the sea. Oh _____ Ri - o. _____ I'll sing you a song of the fish of the sea And we're'. There are two 'Red.' markings with asterisks below the piano accompaniment in the third system.

bound for the Ri - o Grande. Then a - way love, a - way,

'Way down Ri - o, So fare ye well my pret - ty young gel. For we're bound for the Ri - o Grande. 2. Sing Grande.

2. Sing goodbye to Sally, and goodbye to Sue, Oh Rio, etc.
And you who are listening, goodbye to you. And we're bound, etc.
3. Our ship went sailing out over the Bar
And we pointed her nose for the South-er-en Star.
4. Farewell and adieu to you ladies of Spain
And we're all of us coming to see you again.
5. I said farewell to Kitty my dear,
And she waved her white hand as we passed the South Pier.
6. The oak, and the ash, and the bonny birk tree
They're all growing green in the North Countrie.

3. Good-bye, fare ye well.

M. ♩. = 48. SOLO.

1. I

The first system of the musical score consists of a vocal line and a piano accompaniment. The key signature is G major (one sharp) and the time signature is 6/8. The tempo is marked 'M. ♩. = 48.'. The vocal line begins with a whole rest, followed by a quarter note G, a quarter note A, and a quarter note B. The piano accompaniment features a melody in the right hand with a slur over the first two measures and a 'Ped.' marking in the bass line. A '*' symbol is placed at the end of the piano part.

CHORUS.

thought I heard the old man say Good-bye, fare ye well, Good-

The second system of the musical score continues the vocal line and piano accompaniment. The vocal line contains the lyrics: "thought I heard the old man say Good-bye, fare ye well, Good-". The piano accompaniment features a melody in the right hand with a slur over the first two measures and a '7' marking in the bass line.

SOLO. CHORUS.

- bye, fare ye well. I thought I heard the old— man say, Hoo -

VERSES 1 to 6. SOLO. LAST VERSE.

ray my boys we're home - ward bound. 2. We're home - ward bound.

2. We're homeward bound, I hear the sound. (twice)
3. We sailed away to Mobile Bay. (twice)
4. But now we're bound for Portsmouth Town. (twice)
5. And soon we'll be ashore again. (twice)
6. I kissed my Kitty upon the pier
And it's oh to see you again my dear.
7. We're homeward bound, and I hear the sound. (twice)

4. Johnny come down to Hilo.

(WINDLASS AND CAPSTAN.)

M. ♩ = 72. SOLO.

1. I neb-ber see de like since I bin born, When a big buck nig-ger wid de sea boots on, Says "Johnny come down to Hi - lo. Poor old man." Oh wake her, oh, shake her, Oh wake dat gel wid de blue dress on, When Johnny comes down to Hi-lo. Poor old man. 2. I man.

CHORUS.

VERSES 1 to 4. SOLO. LAST VERSE.

2. I lub a little gel across de sea,
She's a Badian* beauty and she sez to me.
"Oh Johnny," etc.
3. Oh was you ebber down in Mobile Bay?
Where dey screws de cotton on a summer day.
When Johnny, etc.
4.  Did you ebber see de ole Plantation Boss
And de long-tailed filly and de big black hoss?
When Johnny, etc.
5. I nebber seen de like since I bin born
When a big buck nigger wid de sea boots on.
Says "Johnny come down," etc.

* s. e. Barbadian, to wit, a native of Barbados.

5. Clear the track, let the Bullgine run.

(WINDLASS AND CAPSTAN.)

M. ♩ = 96.

SOLO.

1. Oh, the

CHORUS.

SOLO.

smart-est clip-per you can find. Ah ho Way-oh, are you most done. Is the

CHORUS.

SOLO.

Marget Evans of the Blue Cross Line. So clear the track, let the Bullgine run. Tib-by

The musical score is written in 2/4 time with a key signature of two flats (B-flat and E-flat). It consists of three systems. The first system begins with a tempo marking 'M. ♩ = 96.' and a 'SOLO.' instruction. The vocal line starts with the lyrics '1. Oh, the'. The piano accompaniment features a steady eighth-note bass line and a treble line with eighth-note chords. The second system is marked 'CHORUS.' and 'SOLO.'. The vocal line continues with 'smart-est clip-per you can find. Ah ho Way-oh, are you most done. Is the'. The piano accompaniment uses a repeating chord pattern in the right hand and a simple bass line. The third system is also marked 'CHORUS.' and 'SOLO.'. The vocal line concludes with 'Marget Evans of the Blue Cross Line. So clear the track, let the Bullgine run. Tib-by'. The piano accompaniment continues with the same chordal texture.

CHORUS.

Hey rig a jig in a jaunt - ing car. Ah ho Way - oh, are you most done. With Li - zer Lee all on my - knee. So clear the track, let the Bull - gine run. 2. Oh the Bull - gine run.

CHORUS.

2. Oh the Marget Evans of the Blue Cross Line
 She's never a day behind her time.

3. Oh the gels are walking on the pier
 And I'll soon be home to you, my dear.

4. Oh when I come home across the sea,
 It's Lizer you will marry me.

5. Oh shake her, wake her, before we're gone;
 Oh fetch that gel with the blue dress on.

6. Oh I thought I heard the skipper say
 "We'll keep the brig three points away."

7. Oh the smartest clipper you can find
 Is the Marget Evans of the Blue Cross Line.

6.

Lowlands away.

(WINDLASS AND CAPSTAN.)

M. ♩ = 60.

Slowly, expressively, and in very free rhythm.

quasi recit.
SOLO.

(INTRODUCTION.) Low-lands,

The introduction consists of five measures. The vocal line (top staff) has rests for the first four measures, followed by a half note G4 and a quarter note A4. The piano accompaniment (bottom staves) features a rhythmic pattern of eighth and sixteenth notes, with a final measure containing a half note G4 and a quarter note A4.

Low-lands, A - way my John, Low-lands, a - way, ——— I a tempo

The first vocal line spans eight measures. The tempo is marked 'a tempo'. The melody begins with a half note G4, followed by quarter notes A4, B4, and C5. The piano accompaniment provides harmonic support with chords and moving lines in both hands.

CHORUS. SOLO.

heard them say, My dol-lar and a half a day. 1. A

The chorus begins with the tempo marking 'CHORUS.' and 'SOLO.'. The vocal line starts with a half note G4, followed by quarter notes A4, B4, and C5. The piano accompaniment features a 3/4 time signature and includes a repeat sign in the first measure.

dol-lar and a half a day is a Hoo-sier's pay.

The first system of music features a vocal line on a single staff and a piano accompaniment on two staves. The vocal line begins with a treble clef and a 3/4 time signature. The lyrics are: "dol-lar and a half a day is a Hoo-sier's pay." The piano accompaniment includes a right-hand part with a treble clef and a left-hand part with a bass clef. The time signature changes from 3/4 to 2/4 and back to 3/4.

CHORUS. SOLO.

Lowlands, Lowlands, A - way my John. A dol-lar and a half a

The second system of music features a vocal line and a piano accompaniment. The vocal line is divided into two sections: "CHORUS." and "SOLO.". The lyrics are: "Lowlands, Lowlands, A - way my John. A dol-lar and a half a". The piano accompaniment consists of two staves. The time signature is 3/4.

CHORUS.

day — is ve-ry good pay. My dol-lar and a half a day.

The third system of music features a vocal line and a piano accompaniment. The lyrics are: "day — is ve-ry good pay. My dol-lar and a half a day." The piano accompaniment consists of two staves. The time signature is 2/4.

SOLO.

2. Oh was you ev - er in Mo - bile Bay.

CHORUS. SOLO.

Low-lands, Low-lands, A - way my John. Screwing the cot - - ton by the day. My dol-lar and a half a day.

CHORUS.

SOLO. CHORUS.

3. All in the night my — true love came. Low-lands,

SOLO.

Low-lands, a - way my John. All in the night —

CHORUS.

— my true love came. My dol-lar and a half a day.

4. She came to me all in my sleep. (twice)
5. And her eyes were white my love. (twice)
6. And then I knew my love was dead. (twice)

Sally Brown.

(WINDLASS AND CAPSTAN.)

M. ♩ = 150.

SOLO.

1. Sal - - ly Brown she's a bright Mu - - lat - - ter.

CHORUS. SOLO.

Way Ay - y Roll and go. She drinks rum and chews ter - back-er. Spend my mo - ney on Sal - ly Brown.

CHORUS.

2. Sally Brown she has a daughter
Sent me sailin' 'cross the water.
3. Seven long years I courted Sally. (twice)
4. Sally Brown I'm bound to leave you
Sally Brown I'll not deceive you.
5. Sally she's a 'Badian' beauty. (twice)
6. Sally lives on the old plantation
She belongs the Wild Goose Nation.
7. Sally Brown is a bright Mulatter
She drinks rum and chews terbacker.

Santy Anna.

(WINDLASS AND CAPSTAN.)

M. ♩ = 116.

The piano introduction is in 4/4 time with a key signature of three flats (B-flat, E-flat, A-flat). It consists of three measures. The first measure has a whole rest in the treble clef. The second and third measures feature a melody in the treble clef with eighth and quarter notes, accented, and a bass line with chords and eighth notes. A large slur covers the melody in the second and third measures.

SOLO. CHORUS.

1. Oh San - ty An - na won the_ day. Way -

The vocal line begins with a whole rest, followed by a solo section (SOLO.) and a chorus section (CHORUS.). The lyrics are: "1. Oh San - ty An - na won the_ day. Way -". The piano accompaniment features a melody in the treble clef with eighth and quarter notes, accented, and a bass line with chords and eighth notes. A large slur covers the melody in the chorus section.

SOLO.

- Ah, me San - ty An - na. Oh San - ty An - na

CHORUS. VERSES 1 to 4. LAST VERSE.

SOLO.

won the day. All on the plains of Mex - i - co. 2. Oh Mex - i - co.

2. He beat the Prooshans fairly, Way-Ah, etc.
And whacked the British nearly. All on, etc.
3. He was a rorty ginerall;
A rorty snorty ginerall.
4. They took him out and shōt him.
Oh when shall we forget him.
5. Oh Santy Anna won the day
And Gin'ral Taylor run away.

9.

Shenandoah.*

(WINDLASS AND CAPSTAN.)

Slowly and with much expression.

M. ♩ = 50.

VIOLIN.
(ad lib.)

VOICE.

PIANO.

The musical score is arranged in three staves: Violin (top), Voice (middle), and Piano (bottom). The key signature is two flats (B-flat and E-flat), and the time signature is 4/4. The tempo is marked 'Slowly and with much expression' with a metronome marking of M. ♩ = 50. The score begins with a violin introduction. The voice part enters with the lyrics '1. Oh Shenandoah, I long to hear you. A - way you rolling'. The piano part provides accompaniment, with small notes indicated for when the violin is silent. The score is divided into a 'SOLO' section and a 'CHORUS' section. The piano part includes markings for 'Ped.' (pedal) and '*' (crescendo).

* The small notes in the piano part are to be played when there is no violin.

river. Oh Shenandoah, I long to hear you. A - way, I'm bound to go ————— 'Cross the wide Mis - sou - ri. 2. Oh - sou - ri.

Red. *

Red. *

2. Oh Shenandoah, I love your daughter. (twice)
3. 'Tis seven long years since last I see thee. (twice)
4. Oh Shenandoah, I took a notion
To sail across the stormy ocean.
5. Oh Shenandoah, I'm bound to leave you.
Oh Shenandoah, I'll not deceive you.
6. Oh Shenandoah, I long to hear you. (twice)

10. Stormalong John.

(WINDLASS AND CAPSTAN.)

Maestoso.
M. ♩ = 130.

SOLO.

1. Oh

CHORUS.

poor old Stor-my's dead and gone. Storm a - long boys,

SOLO.

Storm — a — long. Oh poor old Stor — my's —

The solo section consists of two systems of music. The first system has a vocal line and a piano accompaniment. The vocal line starts in 3/4 time and changes to 4/4. The piano accompaniment follows the same time signature changes. The lyrics are: Storm — a — long. Oh poor old Stor — my's — dead and gone. Ah — ha, come a — long, get a — long,

CHORUS.

The chorus section consists of two systems of music. The first system has a vocal line and a piano accompaniment. The vocal line starts in 3/4 time and changes to 2/4 and 3/4. The piano accompaniment follows the same time signature changes. The lyrics are: dead and gone. Ah — ha, come a — long, get a — long,

VERSES 1 to 4. SOLO. LAST VERSE.

Stor — my a — long John. 2. I — long John.

The verses and last verse section consists of two systems of music. The first system has a vocal line and a piano accompaniment. The vocal line starts in 3/4 time and changes to 4/4. The piano accompaniment follows the same time signature changes. The lyrics are: Stor — my a — long John. 2. I — long John.

- ♪ ♪
2. I dug his grave with a silver spade. (twice)
- ♪ ♪
3. I lower'd him down with a golden chain. (twice)
- ♪ ♪ ♪ ♪
4. I carried him away to Mobile Bay. (twice)
5. Oh poor old Stormy's dead and gone. (twice)

11.

The Hog's-eye Man.

(WINDLASS AND CAPSTAN.)

In leisurely fashion. $m. \text{♩} = 88$ SOLO.

1. Oh the hog's-eye man is the man for me, He were raised way down in — Ten - ne - see. Oh hog's eye, oh.

CHORUS.

Row the boat a - shore for the hog's-eye. — Steady on a jig with a hog's-eye oh, She wants the hog's-eye man. 2. Oh — man.

VERSES 1 to 4. SOLO. LAST VERSE.

† 2. Oh who's been here while I've been gone?

Some big buck nigger, with his sea boots on?

3. Oh bring me down my riding cane,
For I'm off to see my darling Jane.

4. Oh Jenny's in the garden a-picking peas,
And her golden hair's hanging down to her knees.

5. Oh a hog's-eye ship, and a hog's-eye crew,
And a hog's-eye mate, and a skipper too.

† This verse was sometimes sung:—

"Now where have you been gone so long
You Yankee Jack wid de sea boots on?"

The Wild Goose Shanty.

(WINDLASS AND CAPSTAN.)

M. ♩ = 116.

The piano introduction consists of two systems of music. The first system has a treble clef staff with a key signature of one sharp (F#) and a 4/4 time signature. It contains two measures of whole rests. The second system is a grand staff (treble and bass clefs) with a key signature of one sharp and a 4/4 time signature. It contains four measures of music. The first two measures feature a melody in the treble clef with a slur over the notes, and a bass line in the bass clef. The third measure has a treble clef staff with a triplet of eighth notes and a bass line with a dotted quarter note. The fourth measure has a treble clef staff with a quarter note and a bass line with a dotted quarter note.

SOLO. CHORUS.

The vocal solo and chorus section consists of two systems. The first system is a single treble clef staff with a key signature of one sharp and a 4/4 time signature. It contains four measures of music. The first two measures are marked 'SOLO.' and the last two are marked 'CHORUS.'. The lyrics '1. I'm the Shan - ty - man of the Wild Goose Na - tion. Tib-by' are written below the notes. The second system is a grand staff (treble and bass clefs) with a key signature of one sharp and a 4/4 time signature. It contains four measures of piano accompaniment corresponding to the vocal line above. The first two measures have a treble clef staff with a slur over the notes and a bass line with a dotted quarter note. The last two measures have a treble clef staff with a quarter note and a bass line with a dotted quarter note.

1. I'm the Shan - ty - man of the Wild Goose Na - tion. Tib-by

SOLO.

Way - - ay _____ Hi - o - ha! I've left my _____ wife on a big — plan - ta - tion... Hi - lo — my Ran - zo Hay!

CHORUS.

2. Now a long farewell to the old plantation. (twice)

3. And a long farewell to the Wild Goose Nation. (twice)

4. Oh the boys and the girls went a huckleberry hunting. (twice)

5. Then good-bye and farewell you rolling river. (twice)

6. I'm the Shanty-man of the Wild Goose Nation.
I've left my wife on a big plantation.

13. We're all bound to go.

(WINDLASS AND CAPSTAN.)

M. ♩ = 60. SOLO.

1. Oh John - ny was a ro - ver And to - day he sails a - way. Heave a - way, — my

John-ny, Heave a - way - - - ay. — Oh John - ny was a

The musical score is written in G major (one sharp) and 6/8 time. It consists of three systems. The first system is a solo section with a tempo marking of 'M. ♩ = 60.' and the instruction 'SOLO.' The vocal line begins with '1. Oh John - ny was a'. The piano accompaniment features a steady eighth-note bass line and a more active treble line. The second system is the chorus, marked 'CHORUS.' The vocal line continues with 'ro - ver And to - day he sails a - way. Heave a - way, — my'. The piano accompaniment continues with similar rhythmic patterns. The third system is another solo section, marked 'SOLO.' The vocal line concludes with 'John-ny, Heave a - way - - - ay. — Oh John - ny was a'. The piano accompaniment ends with a final chord. There are 'Ped.' (pedal) markings and asterisks in the piano part of each system.

CHORUS.

ro - ver And to - day — he sails a - way. Heave a -

[VERSES 1 to 5.] [LAST VERSE.]

SOLO.

- way — my bul - ly boys, We're all bound to go. — 2. As go. —

2. As I was walking out one day,
Down by the Albert Dock.
Heave away, &c.
I heard an emigrant Irish girl
Conversing with Tapscott.
Heave away, &c.

3. "Good mornin', Mister Tapscott, sir,"
"Good morn, my gel," sez he,
"It's have you got a Packet Ship
All bound for Amerikee?"

4. "Oh yes, I've got a Packet Ship,
I have got one or two.
I've got the Jenny Walker
And I've got the Kangeroo."

5. "I've got the Jenny Walker
And to-day she does set sail,
With five and fifty emigrants
And a thousand bags o' male."* meal

6.  Bad luck to thim Irish sailor boys,
Bad luck to thim I say. [bunk
 For they all got drunk, and broke into me
And stole me clo'es away.

* meal.

14.

What shall we do with the drunken sailor?

(WINDLASS AND CAPSTAN.)

M. ♩ = 108.

SOLO.

1. What shall we do with the drunken sai - lor, What shall we do with the drunken sai - lor,

♩

* ♩

What shall we do with the drunk-en sai-lor Ear-ly in the morn-ing?

Lead. *

CHORUS.

Hoo - ray and up she ri - ses, Hoo - ray and up she ri - ses,

Lead. * Lead. *

Hoo - ray and up she ri - ses Ear - ly in the morn - ing.

Lead. * D.C.

2. Put him in the long-boat until he's sober. (thrice)
3. Pull out the plug and wet him all over. (thrice)
4. Put him in the scuppers with a hose-pipe on him. (thrice)
5. Heave him by the leg in a running bowlin'. (thrice)
6. Tie him to the taffrail when she's yard-arm under. (thrice)

15. Blow my bully boys.

(HALLIARD SHANTY.)

M. ♩ = 150. SOLO.

1. A

CHORUS.

Yan - kee ship came down the ri - ver, Blow, boys blow. Her masts and yards they shine like sil - ver.

SOLO.

CHORUS. VERSES 1 to 7. SOLO. LAST VERSE.

Blow my bul - ly boys blow. 2. And blow.

R. H.

2. And how d'ye know she's a Yankee packet?
The Stars and Stripes they fly above her.
3. And who d'ye think was skipper of her. (twice)
4. 'Twas Dandy Jim, the one-eyed nigger;
'Twas Dandy Jim, with his bully figure.
5. And what d'ye think they had for dinner?
Why bullock's lights and donkey's liver.
6. And what d'ye think they had for supper?
Why weevilled bread and Yankee leather.
7. Then blow my boys, and blow together.
And blow my boys for better weather.
8. A Yankee ship came down the river.
Her masts and yards they shine like silver.

16.

Blow the man down.

(HALLIARDS.)

M. ♩. = 88.

SOLO.

1. Oh —

CHORUS.

blow the man down, bul-lies, blow the man down.
o - ver the Bar on the thirteenth of May. } To me Way - ay,

SOLO. CHORUS.

Blow the man down. { Oh blow the man down, bul-lies, blow him a-way. }
 { The Gal-lop-er jumped, and the gale came a-way. } Oh

VERSES 1 to 6. SOLO. LAST VERSE.

gimme some time to blow the man down. 2. We went blow the man down.

3. Oh the rags they was gone, and the chains they was jammed,

 And the skipper sez he, "Let the weather be hanged."
4. As I was a-walking down Winchester Street,
 A saucy young damsel I happened to meet.
5. I sez to her, "Polly, and how d'you do?"
 Sez she, "None the better for seein' of you?"
6. Oh, it's sailors is tinkers, and tailors is men.

 And we're all of us coming to see you again.
7. So we'll blow the man up, and we'll blow the man down.

 And we'll blow him away into Liverpool Town.

17.

*Cheer'ly men.

(HALLIARDS.)

M. J. = 72.

(a la Chopin)

rall.

SOLO. CHORUS. SOLO.

1. Oh, Nancy Dawson, I - Oh. — Chee-lee men. She robb'd the Bo'sun, I - Oh. — a tempo

CHORUS. SOLO. CHORUS.

Chee-lee men. That was a caution, I - Oh. Chee-lee men.

The musical score is arranged in three systems. The first system shows the piano introduction in 9/8 time, marked 'M. J. = 72' and '(a la Chopin)'. It features a treble and bass clef with a key signature of one flat. The piano part includes a 'rall.' section. The second system contains the first vocal line with lyrics: '1. Oh, Nancy Dawson, I - Oh. — Chee-lee men. She robb'd the Bo'sun, I - Oh. —'. The piano accompaniment is marked 'a tempo'. The third system contains the second vocal line with lyrics: 'Chee-lee men. That was a caution, I - Oh. Chee-lee men.' The piano accompaniment continues with similar phrasing. Various musical markings like 'Solo' and 'Chorus' are placed above the vocal lines. The piano part includes 'crescendo' markings (marked with a star) and 'piano' markings (marked with 'p').

* Pronounced "Chee-lee men."

◆ If sung without accompaniment the portion within brackets may be omitted. If sung with accompaniment the note D (to the word "men") may be sung crescendo and held on to the end of the bar.

Oh Haul - y, I - Oh, Chee - lee men.

Ped. * Ped. *

AFTER LAST VERSE ONLY.

rall.

2. Oh Sally Racket. I-Oh, &c.
 Pawned my best jacket. I-Oh, &c.
 Sold the pawn ticket. I-Oh, &c.

3. Oh Kitty Carson
 Jilted the parson,
 Married a mason.

4. Oh Betsy Baker
 Lived in Long Acre,
 Married a quaker.

5. Oh Jenny Walker
 Married a hawker
 That was a corker.

6. Oh Polly Riddle
 Broke her new fiddle,
 Right through the middle.

18. Good morning, ladies all.

(HALLIARDS.)

Tenderly.

M. ♩. = 56.

SOLO.

1. Now a

The solo section consists of a vocal line and a piano accompaniment. The vocal line begins with a treble clef, a key signature of one sharp (F#), and a 6/8 time signature. The piano accompaniment is written for both the right and left hands, with the right hand in treble clef and the left hand in bass clef. The music is characterized by a gentle, flowing melody with a consistent accompaniment pattern.

CHORUS.

long good - bye to you, my dear, With a heave - oh

The chorus section features a vocal line and piano accompaniment. The vocal line starts with a double bar line and a repeat sign, followed by the lyrics. The piano accompaniment continues with the same melodic and harmonic structure as the solo section, providing a steady accompaniment for the vocal part.

19.

Hanging Johnny.

(HALLIARDS.)

With mock pathos.

M. ♩ = 72.

SOLO.

1. Oh they

The solo section consists of a vocal line and a piano accompaniment. The vocal line begins with a whole rest, followed by a quarter note G4, a quarter note A4, and a quarter note B4. The piano accompaniment features a melody in the right hand and a bass line in the left hand, both in a key of two flats (B-flat major/D minor) and a 6/8 time signature. The piano part includes a fermata over the first two measures of the vocal line.

CHORUS.

call me hang - ing Johnny. ——— A - way, boys, a -

The chorus section includes a vocal line and a piano accompaniment. The vocal line starts with a double bar line and a repeat sign, followed by the lyrics: "call me hang - ing Johnny. ——— A - way, boys, a -". The piano accompaniment provides harmonic support with a melody in the right hand and a bass line in the left hand, maintaining the 6/8 time signature and two-flat key signature.

SOLO. CHORUS.

- way. They says I hangs for mo-ney. Oh

VERSES 1 to 5. SOLO. LAST VERSE.

hang, boys, hang. 2. And hang.

2. Aind first I hanged my daddy. (twice)
3. Aind then I hanged my mother,
My sister and my brother.
4. Aind then I hanged my granny. (twice)
5. Aind then I hanged my Annie;
I hanged her up †see canny.
6. We'll hang and haul together;
We'll haul for better weather.

† Northumbrian equivalent of "so nicely" or "so gently."

20.

Hilo somebody.

(HALLIARDS AND INTERCHANGEABLE.)

With expression.

M. ♩ = 128.

SOLO.

1. The

The solo section consists of a vocal line and a piano accompaniment. The vocal line begins with a whole rest, followed by a half note G4, a quarter note A4, and a quarter note B4. The piano accompaniment features a series of chords and moving lines in both hands, with a melodic line in the right hand and a bass line in the left hand. The key signature is one sharp (F#) and the time signature is 4/4.

CHORUS.

black - bird sang un - to our crew. Hi - lo boys, —

The chorus section includes a vocal line with lyrics and a piano accompaniment. The vocal line starts with a half note G4, a quarter note A4, a quarter note B4, a quarter note C5, a quarter note B4, a quarter note A4, and a half note G4. The piano accompaniment continues with chords and moving lines in both hands. The key signature is one sharp (F#) and the time signature is 4/4.

SOLO. CHORUS.

Hi - lo. The black - bird sang un - to our crew. Oh

ACCOMP. for V. 3-7.

VERSES 1 to 7. SOLO. LAST VERSE.

Hi - lo some - bo - dy, Hi - lo. 2. The Hi - lo.

2. The blackbird sang so sweet to me. (twice)
3. We sailed away to Mobile Bay. (twice)
4. And now we're bound for London Town. (twice)
5. Then up aloft this yard must go. (twice)
6. I thought I heard the old man say:-
"Just one more pull, and then belay."
7. Hooray my boys, we're homeward bound. (twice)
8. The blackbird sang unto our crew. (twice)

21. Oh run, let the Bullgine run.

(HALLIARDS.)

Brisk and lively.

M. ♩ = 150.

SOLO.

1. Oh we'll

The solo section consists of three measures. The first measure is a whole rest in the vocal line. The second measure contains a half note G4. The third measure contains a half note F4. The piano accompaniment features a steady eighth-note bass line in the left hand and chords in the right hand. The key signature is one sharp (F#) and the time signature is 4/4.

CHORUS.

run all night till the morn - ing. Oh run, let the Bull - gine

The chorus section consists of three measures. The first measure contains the lyrics "run all night till the morn - ing." The second measure contains "Oh run, let the Bull - gine". The third measure is a whole rest. The piano accompaniment continues with a steady eighth-note bass line and chords in the right hand. The key signature is one sharp (F#) and the time signature is 4/4.

run. Way - yah, — Oh - I - Oh, — run, let the Bull - gine run. 2. Oh we run.

VERSES 1 to 8. SOLO. LAST VERSE.

2. Oh we sailed all day to Mobile Bay.
3. Oh we sailed all night across the Bight.[†]
4. Oh we'll run from Dover to Cällis.
5. Oh drive her captain, drive her.
6. Oh captain make her nose blood.
7. She's a dandy packet and a flier too.
8. With a dandy skipper, and a dandy crew.
9. Oh we'll run all night till the morning.

[†] Of Australia.

Reuben Ranzo.

(HALLIARDS.)

With unction.

M. ♩ = 112.

The piano introduction consists of three measures in 4/4 time, marked with a key signature of one sharp (F#). The right hand features a melodic line with eighth and sixteenth notes, while the left hand provides a harmonic accompaniment with chords and moving lines. The piece concludes with a final cadence in the right hand.

SOLO. CHORUS.

1. Oh poor old Reu - ben - Ran - - zo, Oh

The vocal line begins with a rest, followed by the lyrics "1. Oh poor old Reu - ben - Ran - - zo, Oh". The melody is simple and uses a mix of eighth and quarter notes. The piano accompaniment supports the vocal line with chords and moving lines in both hands, including a dynamic marking of p (piano).

SOLO.

Ran - zo boys, — Ran - zo. Ah pity poor Reu - ben —

CHORUS.

VERSES 1 to 6.

LAST VERSE.

SOLO.

Ran - - zo. Ran-zo boys, — Ran - zo. 2. Oh Ran - zo.

2. Oh Ranzo was no sailor
He shipped on board a whaler.

3. Old Ranzo couldn't steer her,
Did you ever hear anything queerer?

4. Oh Ranzo was no beauty
Why couldn't he do his duty?

5. Oh Ranzo washed once a fortnight
He said it was his birthright.

6. They triced up this man so dirty
And gave him five and thirty.*

7. Oh poor old Reuben Ranzo
Ah pity poor Reuben Ranzo.

* i.e. 35 lashes.

23.

The dead horse.

(HALLIARDS, or PUMPING SHIP.)

With an easy swing.

M. ♩ = 120.

SOLO.

1. A

The solo section consists of two systems of music. The first system features a single treble clef staff with a key signature of one sharp (F#) and a 4/4 time signature. It contains two measures of music, starting with a whole rest followed by a quarter note G4. The second system is a grand staff with treble and bass clefs. The treble clef part begins with a piano dynamic marking and a slur over the first two measures. The bass clef part provides a simple harmonic accompaniment with chords and single notes.

CHORUS.

The chorus section consists of two systems of music. The first system is a single treble clef staff with a key signature of one sharp (F#) and a 4/4 time signature. It contains four measures of music with the lyrics: "poor old — man came ri - ding by. And they". The second system is a grand staff with treble and bass clefs. The treble clef part begins with a piano dynamic marking and a slur over the first two measures. The bass clef part provides a simple harmonic accompaniment with chords and single notes.

SOLO.

say so, and they hope so. A poor old— man came

VERSES 1 to 6.

LAST VERSE.

CHORUS.

SOLO.

ri - ding by. Oh poor old man. 2. I man.

2. I said "Old man your hoss will die." (twice)
3. And if he dies I'll tan his skin. (twice)
4. And if he lives you'll ride again. (twice)
5. I thought I heard the skipper say. (twice)
6. Oh one more pull and then belay. (twice)
7. A poor old man came riding by. (twice)

24.

Tom's gone to Hilo.

(HALLIARDS.)

Slowly and with expression.

M. ♩ = 72.

SOLO.

1. Tom - my's

The solo section consists of a vocal line and a piano accompaniment. The vocal line is written in a treble clef with a key signature of one sharp (F#) and a 2/4 time signature. It begins with a whole rest, followed by a quarter note G4, a quarter note A4, and a quarter note B4. The piano accompaniment is written in a grand staff (treble and bass clefs) with the same key signature and time signature. It features a steady eighth-note bass line in the left hand and a more melodic line in the right hand, often using slurs to connect notes.

CHORUS.

gone and I'll go too, ——— A - way down

The chorus section includes a vocal line and piano accompaniment. The vocal line is in a treble clef with a key signature of one sharp (F#) and a 2/4 time signature. The lyrics are: "gone and I'll go too, ——— A - way down". The piano accompaniment is in a grand staff with the same key signature and time signature. It features a steady eighth-note bass line in the left hand and a melodic line in the right hand, often using slurs to connect notes.

SOLO.

Hi - lo. _____ Oh, Tom - my's gone and I'll go

CHORUS. VERSES 1 to 6. SOLO. LAST VERSE.

too. _____ Tom's gone to Hi - lo. _____ 2. Tommy's Hi - lo. _____

2. Tommy's gone to Liverpool,
 Away, &c.
 Oh, Tommy's gone to Liverpool,
 Tom's gone to Hilo.

3. Tommy's gone to Mobile Bay.
 Oh, Tommy's gone to Mobile Bay.

5. Tommy fought at Tráfalgar.
 Oh, Tommy fought at Trafalgar.

4. Tommy's gone, what shall I do?
 Oh, Tommy's gone, what shall I do?

6. The old Victory  led the way.
 The brave old Victory  led the way.

7. Tommy's gone for evermore.
 Oh, Tommy's gone for evermore.

25.

Whisky Johnny.

(HALLIARDS.)

Incisively.

M. ♩ = 130.

The piano introduction consists of three measures. The right hand plays a series of chords in the treble clef, while the left hand plays a simple bass line in the bass clef. The key signature has two flats (B-flat and E-flat), and the time signature is 4/4.

SOLO. CHORUS.

1. Oh whis - ky is the life of man. Whis - ky ———

The vocal line begins with a solo section followed by a chorus section. The piano accompaniment provides harmonic support with chords in the right hand and a bass line in the left hand. The lyrics are: "1. Oh whis - ky is the life of man. Whis - ky ———".

Red *

SOLO.

John - ny. Oh whis - ky is the life of man.

2nd *

CHORUS. VERSES 1 to 5. SOLO. LAST VERSE.

Whis - ky for my John - ny. 2. Oh John - ny.

2. Oh, whisky makes me pawn my clothes.
And whisky gave me this red nose.
3. Oh whisky killed my poor old dad.
And whisky druv my mother mad.
4. Oh whisky up, and whisky down.
And whisky all around the town.
5. Oh whisky here, and whisky there.
It's I'll have whisky everywhere.
6. Oh whisky is the life of man.
It's whisky in an old tin can.

26.

Boney was a warrior.

(HALLIARDS.)

Steadily.
M. ♩ = 88.

SOLO.

1. Bo - ney was a war - ri - or.

CHORUS. SOLO. CHORUS.

Way - ay Yah. Bo - ney was a war - ri - or. John France - Wah.*

The musical score is written in 6/8 time with a key signature of two flats (B-flat and E-flat). It consists of two systems. The first system is labeled 'SOLO.' and includes the lyrics '1. Bo - ney was a war - ri - or.' The second system is labeled 'CHORUS. SOLO. CHORUS.' and includes the lyrics 'Way - ay Yah. Bo - ney was a war - ri - or. John France - Wah.*'. The piano accompaniment is shown in grand staff notation (treble and bass clefs).

- | | |
|--|---|
| 2. Boney beat the Rooshians. (twice) | 6. Boney he came back again. (twice) |
| 3. Boney beat the Prooshians. (twice) | 7. Boney went to Elbow. (twice) |
| 4. Boney went to Möscow. (twice) | 8. Boney went to Waterloo. (twice) |
| 5. Moscow was a-fire. (twice) | 9. Boney was defeated. (twice) |
| 10. Boney was a prisoner
'Board the Billy Ruffian.* | |
| 11. Boney he was sent away,
'Way to St. Helena. | |
| 12. Boney broke his heart, and died. (twice) | |
| 13. Boney was a warrior. (twice) | |

+ Francois.

* Sailor pronunciation of "Bellerophon"

27.

Johnny Boker.

(FORE-SHEET.)

Strict time.

M. ♩ = 100.

SOLO.

1. Oh do my Johnny Boker, Come rock and roll me o - ver.

CHORUS.

VERSES 1 to 9. SOLO.

LAST VERSE.

Do my Johnny Bo - ker, do. 2. Oh do.

- | | | |
|---|--|---|
| 2. Oh do my Johnny Boker,
The skipper is a rover.
Do my Johnny, &c. | 5. Oh do, &c.
We'll all go on a jamboree.
Do my, &c. | 8. Oh do, &c.
We'll haul for better weather.
Do my, &c. |
| 3. Oh do, &c.
The mate he's never sober.
Do my, &c. | 6. Oh do, &c.
The Packet is a rollin'.
Do my, &c. | 9. Oh do, &c. [Town.
And soon we'll be in London
Do my, &c. |
| 4. Oh do, &c.
The Bo'sun is a tailor.
Do my, &c. | 7. Oh do, &c.
We'll pull and haul together.
Do my, &c. | 10. Oh do, &c.
Come rock and roll me over.
Do my, &c. |

Haul away Joe.

(FORE-SHEET.)

Andante molto.

M. ♩ = 52.

The first system of the musical score is in 6/8 time. It features a treble clef with a key signature of one sharp (F#) and a bass clef. The tempo is marked 'Andante molto' with a metronome marking of M. ♩ = 52. The music consists of a vocal line and a piano accompaniment. The piano part has a steady bass line with chords in the right hand.

SOLO.

The second system of the musical score is a solo section. It begins with a treble clef and a key signature of one sharp. The tempo remains 'Andante molto'. The music is primarily a vocal line with a piano accompaniment. The lyrics are: '1. Way, haul a - way, We'll haul a - way the bow - lin'.' The piano part provides harmonic support with chords and a simple bass line.

1. Way, haul a - way, We'll haul a - way the bow - lin'.

CHORUS. VERSES 8 to 14. SOLO. ALL OTHER VERSES.

Way, haul a - way, ————— Haul a - way Joe. — 8. He Joe.

2. Way haul away. The packet is a-rollin'.

3. Way haul away. We'll hang and haul together.

4. Way haul away. We'll haul for better weather.

5.  Once I had a nigger girl, and she was fat and lazy.

6.  Then I had a Spanish girl, she nearly druv me crazy.

7.  Geordie Charlton had a pig, and it was double jointed.

8.  He took it to the blacksmith's shop to get its trotters pointed.

9.  King Louis was the king o' France before the Revolution.

10.  King Louis got his head cut off, and spoiled his Constitution.

11. Oh when I was a little boy and so my mother told me.

12. That if I didn't kiss the girls my lips would all go mouldy.

13. Oh once I had a scolding wife, she wasn't very civil.

14. I clapped a plaster on her mouth and sent her to the divvle.

29.

We'll haul the bowlin'.

(FORE-SHEET.)

Briskly.
M. ♩ = 126.

SOLO.

1. We'll haul the bow - lin' so

CHORUS.

VERSES 1 to 5. LAST VERSE.

SOLO.

ear-ly in the morn-ing. We'll haul the bowlin', the bowlin', haul! † 2. We'll bowlin', haul!

(If the shanty is sung by treble voices, these two bars may be played an octave higher.)

(Play 8ve higher if treble voices are singing.)

† The last word ("haul") of the chorus is not sung but shouted staccato.

2. We'll haul the bowlin' for Kitty is my darlin'.
3. We'll haul the bowlin'; the fore-to-gallant bowlin'.
4. We'll haul the bowlin', the skipper is a growlin'.
5. We'll haul the bowlin', the packet is a rollin'.
6. We'll haul the bowlin' so early in the morning.

30. Paddy Doyle's boots.

(BUNT SHANTY.)

Very slowly.

M. ♩ = 60.

CHORUS.

1. To my way - - ay - - ay - - ah, We'll

FOR ALL REPETITIONS.

FOR LAST TIME.

pay Pad-dy Doyle for his boots. To my boots.

Alternative verses.

2. We'll all throw dirt at the cook.
3. We'll all drink brandy and gin.

BRIEF LIST OF

Morris and Country Dances Folk Songs, Singing Games

Our Folk Music List, gratis and post free, contains full particulars, contents, and illustrations of these works.

ALL PRICES ARE NET CASH EXCEPT THOSE MARKED †

The Esperance Morris Book

By MARY NEAL

8570/1 Parts I and II. Price 10/6 each net cash.

The Guild of Play Books

By Mrs. C. W. KIMMINS

8546/9 Parts I-IV. Price 10/6 each net cash.

8590 MASQUE OF THE CHILDREN OF THE EMPIRE. Numbers from the 'Guild of Play Book.' Price: Plan, without music, 2/-; Complete, 5/- net cash.

8605 NATIONAL SONGS AND DANCES OF THE ALLIES. Price 5/- net cash.

Singing Games

Collected by Miss Alice Gillington Net Cash

8588 OLD DORSET SINGING GAMES... 2/6

8561 OLD HAMPSHIRE SINGING GAMES 2/6

8556 OLD SURREY SINGING GAMES... 2/6

8508 BRETON SINGING GAMES... 2/6

Collected by S. E. Thornhill

8587 LONDON BRIDGE AND OTHER GAMES ... 2/6

Collected by Grace Cleveland Porter

8596 NEGRO FOLK-SINGING GAMES 5/-

Country, Morris, and Folk Dances*

Arranged by Mary H. Woolnoth Net Cash

8593 PLAYFORD'S COUNTRY DANCES 4/-

Revised by Nellie Chaplin

8562 ANCIENT DANCES AND MUSIC... 3/-

8579 COURT DANCES AND OTHERS ... 5/-

8594 MINUET AND GAVOTTE ... 3/-

Edited by Miss Cowper Coles

8578 GREENSLEEVES AND OTHER OLD DANCES ... 3/-

8565 OLD ENGLISH COUNTRY DANCE STEPS ... 2/-

* Bells, rosettes, hats, beansticks, maypoles, and braids may be procured from the Publishers.

Country, Morris, and Folk Dances—cont.

Collected by Mildred Bult Net Cash

8551 OLD DEVONSHIRE DANCES ... 2/6

Collected by John Graham

8543 SHAKESPEAREAN-BIDFORD MORRIS DANCES ... 2/6

8583 LANCASHIRE AND CHESHIRE MORRIS DANCES ... 2/6

Collected by Frank Kidson

8602 ENGLISH COUNTRY DANCES ... 2/6

Arranged for children's performance, with Instructions.

8552 OLD ENGLISH COUNTRY DANCE AND MORRIS TUNES ... 3/-

By Miss E. Hughes

8521 MAYPOLE EXERCISES ... 2/6

By A. Shaw

8581 MAYPOLE DANCES ... 2/6

Collected and Arranged from Various Sources

8568 FOLK DANCES OF EUROPE ... 3/-

Noted by Miss Cowper Coles

†1365 THE HORNPIPE... 2/-

Folk and National Songs

Collected and Arranged by S. Baring Gould, M.A., and Cecil Sharp, B.A.

†6051 ENGLISH FOLK - SONGS FOR SCHOOLS ... 6/-

Vocal edition, 2/- Words only, 6d.

Selected and Arranged by W. H. Hadow

†6179 SONGS OF THE BRITISH ISLANDS 5/-

Vocal edition, 1/6. Words only, 6d.

Collected by John Graham

8564 TRADITIONAL NURSERY RHYMES 3/-

Collected by Mrs. Clifford Beckett

6293 SHANTIES AND FOREBITTERS ... 2/6

Collected by Alice E. Gillington

6266 OLD CHRISTMAS CAROLS... 2/6

Noted by John Graham

8585 DIALECT SONGS OF THE NORTH 2/6

J. CURWEN & SONS Ltd., 24 BERNERS STREET, LONDON, W.1

Date Due

MAY 22 1950
APR 3 1951	APR 4 1967
MAY 28 1952	APR 24 1958
MAR 13 1953
MAR 8 1956	AUG 28 1960 MAY 20 1975
MAR 17 1956	DEC 03 1975 DISCHARGED
JAN 27 1961	JUL 21 1977 DISCHARGED
NOV 14 1962	DISCHARGED
APR 15 1963	INTERLIBRARY LOAN SERVICE
APR 15 1963
JUN 18 1964
JAN 18 1964
NOV 2 1965
MAR 15 1967

Demco 298-5

M1978
S2T3
v.1

814876

MUSIC LIBRARY

The Ohio State University
3 2435 028674430 shanty book : 001
M1978S2T3 V1

001
V1

The Ohio State University

3 2435 028674430

shanty book :
M1978S2T3

001
V1